

The Detroit region spends less on public transit than almost every other major metro region (of over 1 million) per capita. And we get what we pay for.

